

Privacy

The privacy of Group One users is particularly important for us. Below you can find information about the personal data collected when visiting www.groupone.pl. It is essential to point out that we never sell the data nor do we transmit it to other subjects.

Colaboration with Google

Group One uses Google Analytics, the service enabled by Google, Inc. ("Google") that analyzes ratings of websites. Google Analytics uses "cookies" – text files placed on your user computer in order to enable the website to analyze the way in which users use it. Google can pass this information to third parties only if it's obliged to do so according to legal regulations.

Files from the clients

Just as most of other websites we collect and use the data stored in log files. These files contain such information as: your IP number, computer's network name, your Internet provider, the browser you are using, the time you spend on the website, as well as the subpages you visit while on www.groupone.pl.

Cookie files

We use cookie files to store information about your personal preference on our website. These files store your personal settings and a proposal of automatic filling of form fields.

Contact for privacy policy

We are eager to answer the questions which exceed the above matters. Please send your query to info@groupone.pl.